Alloo, yesterday.

It was reported at the Navy Department that Admiral Kirkland, since he became aware that Secretary Herbert disapproved of several of his actions, had applied for detachment from his command, but Acting Secretary McAdoo said he had no integrated that would confirm this ation that would confirm this.

There is no doubt whatever that the recall of the admiral was intended as a rebuke. Hefore leaving for Atlanta last pight Secretary Herbert was asked if would make any statement concerning the matter, and he answered that he would not.

Admiral Kirkland cannot be placed on the retired list on account of age until 1898. If he should remain in the service until that time he would become the ranking officer of the Navy. It is believed, however, that he will make application to be placed on the retired list on his return home, and there is inthe doubt that the request, if made, will be granted by the President.

Verdict of Coroner's Jury That He Died from Natural Causes.

Dr. Glazebrook's Testimony to the Effect That Death Was Due to Valvular Disease of the Heart.

A coroner's jury quickly decided rester-day afternoon that John M. Sandford died day afternoon that John M. Sanquere med from natural causes and was not poisoned. The inquest was held at 3 o'clock in Lee's undertaking establishment. The body of Sandford had been twice exhumsed body of Sandford had been twice exhumed in order to satisfy his friends and widows that he had not been poisoned, as had been alleged with considerable emphasis.

The first witness before Coroner Hammett was Dr. Crosson, who attended Sandford just prior to his death. He testified that the dead man was seventy three years of age, a retired sailor, and resided at No. 207 G street northwest. When Dr. Crosson was called he found Sandford getting over the effects of a spree. His stomach was so weak that he was unable to retain even water. The primary cause of his death was gastritis, or inflammation of the stomach. The immediate cause of death was heart failure.

Sandrord had been dead fifteen minutes on October 2 when the doctor arrived in answer to his wife's summens. There was no evidence of a struggle with death. The dead man his as though he had possed

The deed man his as though he had passed away peacefully.

Chemist Marjon Dorset, of the Agricultural Department, testified to making an analysis of Sandford's stomach and exartents. He found about a balf pint of arsenic in that organ. There was no akeration of the stomach, but decided congestion. The arsenic used in the embalming process might have been forced into the stomach. Deputy Coroner Glazebrook testified as to the antopsy. Decrased was quite corpulent and weighed fully 180 or 150 pounds. His heart was embedded in a large quantity of fat. His arteries were the arteries of old age and liable to give way at any time and cause apoplexy. The mass of fat about Sandford's heart was from one-half to one

MURDERER HARRIS' TRIAL.

Slaver of Matthew Spruell Very Neryous in the Court.

The trial of John, alias Patsy, Harris, indicted for the murder of Matthew Spruel, was begun by the partial selection of a vesterday before Judge Cole in criminal court, division No. 1. After an hour the panel was exhausted, eleven jarors had been chosen with however, teventeen challenges at the disposal of the attorneys. Thirty-five talesmen were summoned to appear in the morning.

He lived with his wife in the second story of a house on Thirty-third street, George town. Downstairs Matthew Spruell had a barber thop in the front room and lived with his family in the rear rooms.

On the 4th of last July Harris' wife entered the shop about noon, and, it is claimed, to spoke to all around her save partially intoxicated condition. Spruell isked why his wife had slighted him. Harris said he had told her to speak to no men.

A quarrel resulted, and Spruell flourished a razor and Harris drew a revolver.

A woman separated them, and Harris pistol was thrown into the back yard. It is said he went on up stairs and a few minutes later returned and passed through the rear door, picking up the revolver in the back yard.

Big Democratic Sentiment Turning to the New Yorker.

THE SILVER MEN LIKE HIM

He Has Not Positively Declined the Honor and Republicans Fear He Will Not-His Personal Popularity and Powerful Resources Make Him a Great Favorite.

With the national campaign ttill a trifle too remote for close computations as to the relative strength of Presidential candidate, sufficient progress has been made to pretty clearly establish the fact that a large proportion of the Democratic regard ex-secretary William C. Whitney as the most available man who could be nominated by their party, and the Repub licans are more apprehensive of his selec-tion than any other possibility as yet sug-his return from Europe, made the formal announcement that he would not be a candidate before the convention of next year datate before the convention of next year it is not by any means interpreted as a positive declination of the nomination if actually tendered.

Very few men have refused to be the standard-bearer of a party having reasonable pro peets of landing its choice in the Executive Mancion, and the opinion does not prevail among Washington politicisms.

not prevail among Washington politicians that the ex-Secretary would prove an ex-ception to the general rule. WHITNEY'S AVAILABILITY.

The more concretaive Democrats among the rank and file, as well as the leaders, who realize in advance the necessity for party harmony, appreciate the availa-bility of Mr. Whitney as a compromise candidate His record, both personal and political, is beyond reproach, and a clean campaign, devoid of mud-throwing, would be guar-anteed. His conduct of the Navy Department during the first administration of Mr Cleveland rhowed him to be a man well qualified to handle public affairs in a plain, business-like manner. It's executive ability was demonstrated beyond any peradventure by his successful and diplomatic management of Mr. Cleveland's candidacy before the Chicago onvention in 1892. In the face of strong adverse senti-ment, hampered by the handicap of a two-thirds rule, and obtaining no assisttwo-thirds rule, and obtaining no assist-ance from his own State delegation, Mr. Whitney achieved a signal friumph that will be long remembered alike by friends and adversaries.

Tossessing more than the ordinary share of personal magnetism and with an unusual faculty for making and retaining friends, Mr. Whitney would be a great success in a handshaking campaign. The argament that he is not an orator is answered by the information that Mr. Cleveland has never delivered a political address, but has invariably expressed his convictions regarding questions at issue through the medium of letters, always written at an opportune time.

REPUTATION FOR ENTERTAINING.
During his residence in Washington Mr.
Whitney gained a tational acquaintanceship that is not easily cradicated. He made and sustained a reputation for cutertaining that eclipsed any other member of the President's official family, and ing his memory.

A last, but not least, item which may be placed on the credit side of the ledger is the fact that Mr. Whitney is so situated that Mr. and the state of the ledger is the fact that Mr. Whitney is so situated the state of the large side of the large that he could, if so disposed, make un-usually generous contributions to the cam-paign fund.

A strong argument in favor of Mr. Whit-ney's selection is founded on the behirf that he could carry the State of New York. The reported estrangement between the President and his former Secretary of the Navy is accepted on alloides as true, but this does not mean any eventual detriment this does not mean any eventual detriment to the latter.

In the event of deciding to make no con-test for a renomination, or realizing the hopelessness of such efforts, Mr. Cleveland would prefer to see the choice go clsewhere than to New York, and there is no doubt that his preference would be Secretary Oliney.

But, seeing his own cause lost, and Mr.
Oliney developing ne-formidable strength as a man upon whom the warring factions could unite, it is the almost ananimous expression of opinion that the President would throw his strength in New York State to Mr. Whitney as against Semator Hill.

This would not be done because of any sentimental love for Mr. Whitney but simply for the reason that he entertained the greater hatred for Mr. Hill.

It is a reasonable deduction that the Senator would pursue a similar course, and when confronted by inevitable defeat w make the best terms he could with Mr. Whitney, as against the President. IN PREFERENCE TO THE PRESIDENT.

That element of the Democratic party which has to a greater or less degree em-braced the doctrine of free silver would without hesitation choose Mr. Whitney as in preference to Mr. Cleveland.

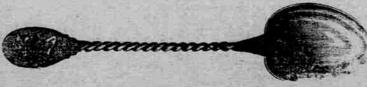

While believing in sound money and advo-cating good business methods, the former is far more liberally disposed toward silver, and would be willing to make some conces-sions in that direction if convinced that a majority of the people reality believed that the prosperity of the country would be enhanced by an increased use of silver. Unless the prevailing sentiment in regard to free coinage shall have moderated before the convention is held it is a practical cer-tainty that many of the Southern and far Western States will send delegates instruct-ed to fight for a silver plank in the platform While believing in sound money and advo ed to fight for a silver plank in the platform and contend for the nomination of the best possible exponent to stand upon it. They will not be expected to carry their fight to the extent of withdrawing from the convention, but to use their utmost endeavors.

In such an event Mr. Whitney would be the beneficiary of these instructions. Failing to influence the nomination of an out-and-out free Silver man, the delegates out and out free Siver man, the delegates from these States most directly interested would maturally throw their support to Mr. Whitney as a better Hobsen's choice than either Mr. Cleveland or Senator Hill. The Republicans dread the selection of Mr. Whitney more than that of any other man mentioned up to this time. His good record, his executive ability, his diplomatic skill as a political manager, his Americanism, his rather, liberal ideas on the financial question, his personal popularity, and his unlimited resources cause him to be regarded as their most dangerous antagonist.

Campaign Assessments Levied On Printing Office Employes.

Mr. Connelly's Receiving Office Doing Rushing Business, but the Law Is Not Violated,

The levy of assessments for political pur poses is going on with increased activity in the departments. This applies with es-pecial force to the Government Printing Office, which up to this year has not been under the semblance of civil service protection. There is, however, no practical difference made by the fact that the civil service rules have been extended to the office during the past summer.

The evasion of any and all legislation has been shown to be perfectly easy. The Civil Service Commission does not even take interest enough in the matter to investigate except when furnished with tolerably conclusive evidence of violation of the law. The district attorney looks to the Civil Service Commission to furnish the facts upon which any indictment under the penaity chause of the act of January 16, 1883, could be obtained. Of course, any private citizen could call the matter to the attention of the grand jury, but there is no like lihood at all that anyhody will. As the Civil Service Commission will only promise to investigate upon conditions not SIGN THEIR DEATH WARRANTS. Of course, as Mr. Connelly is not in any way connected with the government, he is entirely free from the force of any law. He is acting by the authority of James W. Hinckley, chairman of the New York Demoringley, chairman of the New York Demo-cratic State committee, and inaquestionably has the moral support of every Democratic Congressman from that State. Men who refuse to contribute may with reasonable certainty be supposed to sign their own official death warrants. Yet the whole operation is entirely legal.

Some of the employes object very serious-ly to being subjected to these levies, but they have no relief except to gramble.

It is advisable, however, for all those who have determined to take advantage of the reduced rate to call as early as is convenient for fear the rash will be so great this week that many will be mable to see the doctor at all. Many people asked if $5 per month covers the cost of treatment for all diseases with which they may be afflicted. Dr. Walker wans it understood that this fee will cover all complications, with medicine and appliances far mished free. Should you have rhoumatism-catarth, and dyspepsia, he does not charge $5 for theamatism, $5 for catarth, and $5 for dyspepsia, but for a single $5 note he will for one month treat all the diseases with which you may be afflicted.

Many persons called yesterday who mismedistication the doctor's offer. They supposed they could get advice and medicine free and called without money. This in not the case. Dr. Walker wishes it understood that be is not treating people for nothing or giving away beneficies. While $5 a month hardly covers the cost of medicine used, he wishes every one he treats to understand that he is in no sense a charity patient, but is entitled to the same patitisting care and attention that he would receive were he paying a much larger fee.

All who take treatment to day, October 23, are entitled to that rate until cared.
